The Legal Analysis of Consumer Protection Against The Circulation of Expired Food Products in Indonesia

Wiwik Sri Widiarty

Abstract:

The rapid growth of the food industry that produces processed food products today is increasing. There are a variety of food industry products that have the potential to cause food safety problems, especially broken food products and expiration, so the government needs to make regulations that govern it. Lately - in some areas there are many food that has been expired in the community. This condition is certainly not missed by producers for business in the field of food, because it is considered a tempting business to seek profit. However, the Government needs to respond to the manufacturers dishonesty in producing and selling food that endangers the health of consumers
