Dear
Editor Russian Journal of Education and Psychology (RJEP)

I have read and used scientific articles published in RJEP.
The performance of the RJEP was excellent, and the published article helped me conduct research and write scientific reports.

I am Lamhot Naibaho, from Universitas Kristen Indonesia, Jakarta.
I have completed a scientific article entitled “English Teachers' Professional Learning Community in Senior High Schools Students: Students' Perspective on its' Implementation."

I hope this article can be published in the RJEP because exciting findings in the scientific report can become new treasures in science, especially in education sciences.
I am willing to go through the review process following RJEP standards.

Best Regards,

Lamhot Naibaho

Editor and reviewer comments:
Reviewer:
1. Clarity in Purpose: The abstract could benefit from a more explicit statement of the study's purpose. Clearly articulate the research question or objective to guide readers in understanding the focus of the investigation.

2. Methodology Precision: Provide more details on the selection criteria for outstanding principals as respondents. A clearer explanation of why this group was chosen and how it relates to the study's objectives would enhance the methodological transparency.

3. Data Collection Clarification: Elaborate on the semi-structured interview process. How were questions formulated, and how did the researchers ensure consistency in data collection? More details on the interview methodology would enhance the study's reliability.

4. Instrument Validation: Include information on the validation process of the interview instrument based on Olivier and Hipp's professional learning community model. Highlight any modifications made to suit the study's context and ensure the tool's reliability and validity.

5. Results Presentation: Provide more specific examples or instances from the study's results to illustrate the effectiveness of the professional learning community in school improvement practices. Concrete examples will enrich the discussion and provide a deeper understanding.

6. Linkage to Previous Research: Integrate a brief discussion linking your findings to existing literature. Highlight how your results contribute to or challenge existing knowledge on professional learning communities, especially in the context of English language teaching.

7. Address Limitations: Explicitly mention any limitations in the study, such as potential biases or constraints, to enhance the transparency of the research. Acknowledging limitations will strengthen the overall credibility of the findings.

8. Application Implications: Discuss practical implications of the study's findings for English teachers and school administrators. How can the insights gained from the research contribute to the enhancement of professional learning communities in similar educational settings?

9. Perspective Inclusion: Consider incorporating students' direct quotes or anecdotes in the results section to provide a more nuanced understanding of their perspectives on the professional learning community. This would add depth to the qualitative findings.

10. Keywords Clarification: Clarify the term "im-plementation" in the keywords section. Ensure consistency in spelling and accuracy. Consider providing a brief explanation of this term to avoid ambiguity for readers unfamiliar with the specific context.

I hope you can make improvements as soon as possible and send the revised article again via this email.
