Dear
Editor The Asian ESP Journal (AESPJ)

We have read and used scientific articles published in AESPJ.
The performance of the AESPJ was excellent, and the published article helped us conduct research and write scientific reports.

I am Lamhot Naibaho, representing other authors from Universitas Kristen Indonesia, Jakarta.
We have completed a scientific article entitled "A Comparison of Female and Male English Lecturers' Working Performance and Competence: A Research-Based on Students' Perspective."

We hope this article can be published in the AESPJ because exciting findings in the scientific report can become new treasures in science, especially in education sciences.
We are willing to go through the review process following AESPJ standards.

Best Regards,

Editor and reviewer comments:

Reviewer:

1. Clarity and Focus: The abstract provides a clear overview of the study, but it could benefit from a more concise and focused statement of the research question. Consider refining the objective to enhance clarity.
2. Methodology Clarification: The methodology is briefly outlined; however, more details on the sampling technique and rationale for selecting 50 English education students would strengthen the study's methodological foundation.
3. Instrument Validity: It would be beneficial to include information on the validity and reliability of the questionnaires used to measure lecturer performance and competency. This strengthens the credibility of the study's findings.
4. Data Analysis Explanation: Provide a more detailed explanation of the Likert Scale analysis used for questionnaire data. This will aid readers in understanding how responses were interpreted and analyzed.
5. Findings Interpretation: The conclusion could be more explicit in interpreting the findings. Elaborate on why high school students prefer male language instruction and discuss potential implications for the teaching profession.
6. Contextual Information: Add more contextual information about the private university in East Jakarta to help readers understand the generalizability of the study's findings beyond this specific location.
7. Thorough Literature Review: Expand the literature review to include a more comprehensive exploration of existing research on gender differences in language instruction. This would provide a stronger theoretical framework for the study.
8. Discussion of Limitations: Address the limitations of the study, such as the limited sample size and the focus on a single university, to ensure a more balanced interpretation of the findings.

9. Keyword Relevance: Consider including additional keywords that reflect the study's focus, such as "gender in education" or "language teaching preferences," to enhance searchability and relevance.
10. Language Precision: The abstract suggests that language instruction should be "more specific and more precise as males' language instruction." Clarify what is meant by "specific" and "precise" in the context of language instruction for a more nuanced understanding.

I hope you can make improvements as soon as possible and send the revised article again via this email.
